

Name _____ Date _____

E-mailing for Homework Help

What do you do when you're stumped with a homework question? What if you've already tried getting help offline? And you also tried searching homework help sites without any luck? Don't worry! There is yet another way to get help with your homework.

You can go to a homework help Web site and send an e-mail asking for help.

Get a parent or guardian to go online with you.
Follow the directions below.

- ☐ Go to www.becybersmart.org/students
- ☐ Click on the green triangle.
- ☐ Find the title of this lesson and choose one of the homework help sites.

First, check the help site's message board. If someone has already asked the same question, the answer will be posted. If not, send your question by e-mail. Then wait for a reply.

How do you add fractions?

How is glass made?

Why are tarantulas so hairy?

Why do some shadows look darker than others?

Be CyberSmart![®]

Always ask permission of your parent, guardian, or teacher before sending e-mail for homework help.

